

Joy (Bailey) Klute was a special lady. Not only was she a farm wife, mother, grandmother, sister and friend to many, she was also a gourmet cook, before the term was widely used. Growing up in Oklahoma during the Great Depression, Joy learned how to make delicious meals with everyday ingredients. In 1947, Joy moved from Bartlesville, Oklahoma to marry Herbert Klute, a widower with four young children. They made their home on a farm near Hampton, Nebraska and together welcomed five more children into the family. Joy not only prepared three meals each day for the family, but also took morning and afternoon lunch to the men in the field. Joy's Table is a place where her name and passion for serving others quality homemade meals continues to touch the lives of Central Nebraskans and those who are passing through. We hope you feel at home, at Joy's Table.
